

2019
ROADTRIP

FEBRUARY 23- MARCH 2, 2019

The road trip was scheduled for the day after the “storm of the century” blasted through Utah and northern Arizona, leaving record snowfall and bitter cold in its wake. A few hours before our scheduled departure the road from Carmel Junction to Springdale was closed.

We went anyway.

We packed the van with food, cameras, tripods and great attitudes and headed up I17 toward Flagstaff.

We saw snow the entire trip.

We encountered snow in places that usually never get snow. The Vermillion Cliffs. Cameron. Even along the Colorado River at Lee’s Ferry we saw snow deep in the shadows.

Weather experts promised us bitter cold, but the temperature was milder than expected. Only on the first night did the bottled water left in the van freeze.

We had a lot of fun and made a few memorable photos along the way.
